WINNER NAMED IN DRIVE SAFE CHICAGO PSA CONTEST

Indiana teen wins $2,000 prize from The National Road Safety Foundation; Her TV spot debuts at Chicago Auto Show before airing nationwide

CHICAGO, Feb. 10, 2017 -- A high school junior from Crown Point, Ind. has won the third annual Drive Safe Chicago PSA Contest.

Hannah Christy, 17, was one of three finalists from nearly 100 entries. Her script about the danger of drowsy driving was professionally produced, along with the scripts by two other finalists, by an Emmy Award-winning director who came to her school recently and worked with her and classmates to produce the finished 30-second spot. The public voted for their favorite through the Chicago Auto Show's Facebook page and Christy's ad handily won with 727 votes, more than 56 percent of the total votes cast.

Christy will receive a $2,000 prize from The National Road Safety Foundation, a non-profit group that promotes safe driving. The contest, held in conjunction with the Chicago Auto Show, invited teens to spread the word about the dangers of distracted driving with a public service message. Christy's TV spot be shown on the Auto Show's social media video wall throughout the show, which is open to the public from Feb. 11 – 20. It will also air later this year on more than 220 TV stations nationwide.

The other finalists, Payton Ball, 18, and Mackenzie Taulbee, 17, attend school with Christy at Porter County Career Center in Valparaiso, IN. Their teacher, Bob Phelps, brought the contest to the attention of his classes and more than three dozen of his students entered. Taulbee, whose ad placed second with 290 online votes, will receive $1,000.

"We are happy that so many young people have used their creativity to help educate their peers about the risks of distracted driving," said David Reich of The National Road Safety Foundation. "Hannah's spot highlights drowsy driving, which is an aspect of distraction that doesn't get as much attention as texting and cell phones. Drowsiness is a factor in an estimated one-third of fatal traffic crashes."

2 .. WINNER NAMED IN DRIVE SAFE CHICAGO PSA CONTEST

Christy's PSA, which can be viewed at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=n1oMkFjtj-4>, shows a teen up late at night studying. She gets up early and drives to school, yawning and struggling to keep her eyes open. As he dozes and misses a stop sign, the screen goes black and we hear the sounds of a crash. The spot closes with the words "Driving Drowsy can be a Nightmare."

"Distracted driving is a serious risk that needs to be addressed at all levels," said Mike McGrath, Jr., 2017 Chicago Auto Show chairman. "While today's cars are safer than ever, with many innovations that help avoid crashes and protect occupants in the event of one, driver inattention continues to be a major factor in crashes. We think all the Drive Safe Chicago finalists have done an excellent job communicating the message that distracted driving is dangerous driving."

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates more than 3,300 people are killed every year due to distracted driving, and tens of thousands more are injured. The most talked-about causes of distraction are texting and cell phone use, but drivers, specially teens, can also can be distracted by too many passengers in the car, use of other mobile devices like GPS, as well as adjusting sound system controls, talking with passengers or even eating.

The winner of Drive Safe Chicago last year was Abigail Evans, then a senior at Washington Township (Ind.) High School. Rachel Diaz, who was a student at Porter County Career Center in Valparaiso, won the first Drive Safe Chicago contest in 2015.
